EPA Approved Course, presented by the EI Group, EPA Approved Instructors / This course is NOT eligible for CE Credit*

In 2008 the US EPA announced new rules for contractors who renovate or repair housing, childcare facilities or schools built before 1978. Under the new rules, contractors and workers must have documented training and practice lead-safe work practices to reduce potential lead exposures during renovation and repair activities.

This requirement applies to anyone such as painters, plumbers, electricians and contractors who could potentially expose children to lead dust during their work.
